

Valschavieltal Tour

DIFFICULT

Tour description

A challenging bike tour through the unspoiled Valschavieltal Valley up to the Inner Rossberg, where tranquility, alpine vistas, and a breathtaking mountain panorama await you.

Starting from the valley floor, the tour takes you past waterfalls, mountain streams, and old Maissäss settlements deep into one of the most unspoiled side valleys in the Montafon. The long climb to the Valschavieltal mountain pasture along the wide gravel path demands a fair amount of stamina, before the terrain temporarily flattens out toward Mardusa. Next, the challenging final ascent to the Inner Rossberg awaits you, from where you'll cover the last 300 meters on foot to the unstaffed Rossberg Rinderhütte. Once you reach the top, one thing stands out above all else: plenty of mountain nature, plenty of peace and quiet, and a sweeping view of the surrounding landscape.

Starting Point - Directions - End Point

Starting Point

Silvretta Park Montafon, Valisera Bahn valley station in St. Gallenkirch

Directions

From Silvretta Park Montafon, start by cycling along the bike path into the valley toward Gaschurn until you reach Mountain Beach. There, turn left into the Valschavieltal Valley and follow the wide gravel path uphill to the Valschavieltalmaissäss. Passing the fish pond and following the mountain streams, the route continues into the upper valley toward Mardusa and then over the Inner Rossberg to just before the Rossberg Rinderhütte. You'll cover the last 300 meters or so to the hut on foot. The return trip follows the same route.

End Point

Silvretta Park Montafon, Valisera Bahn valley station in St. Gallenkirch

Useful tips

Take some time to explore the historic Maisäß landscape of Valschaviel. Its unique atmosphere even won over director Joseph Vilsmaier: parts of his film “Bergkristall” were shot here in 2004.

If you have enough time, are in good physical condition, and have the right gear, you can combine the tour with a hike to Lake Valschaviel or up to the Albonakopf at 2,482 meters.
