Directions

From the Madlenerhaus, you hike up to the Silvretta Lake. The hike starts at Silvrettasee and leads left over the dam to the junction into the Bieltal. The lively Bieltalbach helps you overcome the first altitude meters. A larger lake, the Radsee, is located to the right of the path on a hill, embedded in green meadows. Now you have to cross rock and scree fields. Further up, the path becomes wetter because smaller lakes are located in the area. The Rad saddle is reached. The view is magnificent. Grey-green and rust-red rugged rock ridges rise from green mats. Behind them, the white snowfields and impressive glaciers shimmer. The descent to the Wiesbadener Hut is initially somewhat steep and then zigzags down.

Equipment

Good, ankle-high hiking boots with a good tread, sufficient food and drinks to take along, hiking poles recommended.

Tips

Due to high demand at the huts, we recommend reserving sleeping places directly at the huts early enough.
